Vice Consul Thomson Tells of Polyglot Army at Saloniki.

A famous newspaper editor one remarked that the primary duty of very reporter was to know where "hell will break loose next" and be there, but a young man from Washington has gone most correspondents one better in complying with that reportorial program during the pres-

He doesn't work for a newspaper at all, but for the State Department. He is Vice Consul Alfred R. Thomson, of Maryland, but he was a cade! officer and athlete at Central High School, later attended George Wash-ington University, and now is visiting his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Thomson, 3423 Sixteenth street.

With Germana and Allies, Where he has it on most war cor-respondents is that he has lived in both German and entente environ-ments. He was in Berlin when the war broke out, later was stationed at Nish, the former temporary capital of Serbia before its invasion by the central powers, and for the last two years has been at Saloniki, base of the enterite military operations in Greek Macedonia. Never before—and never again, perris.
J. H. Wash, Goockland, Harris.
J. W. Walton, Louiss, Har-

haps-will there be such an opportu nity to mingle with military men from all quarters of the world, to see such hodge podge of nationalities, and to observe the contrast between a civilization that bears traces of the dark ages curiously blended with the most modern institutions of all the Harrington.
E. R. Shackelford, Richmond, Raleigh.
R. H. Bilvins, Lynchburg,

Colorful Scene At Saloulki. For in Saloniki, as. Vice Consul Thomson describes it, British offi-cers and troops from India, French officers and troops from China and officers and troops from China and coal-black skinned warriors from Africa, tail figures of the Russian soldiers and the febrile Italians, pass through streets in which modern street cars make their way between the street barbers on one side, muss bearing the butchers wares clamped on boards hanging from their backs, in defiance of all movern hygiene, and goats burdened with pouches from which is distributed the city's milk

Park, J. A. Pulliam, Capitol Park W. Creaton, Capitol Park, C. W. Ostenten, Payettaville, Alongside patriarchs in the kimonolike native costumes, accompanied by women in acron-like shirts and vari-colored bodices, cut as low as the most pneumonfa defying American maid would dare risk a V-effect, sit brisk young newspaper men fect, sit brisk young newspaper men of every nationality, sipping the in-toxicants which have not been pro-scribed in Greece. No wonder Richard Harding Davis, lover of bizarre spent weeks there, and incorporated tales of the strange human admix-obiles skid buthely under age old arches, and in and out of the great wall that dates back to the Syzantine empire, soldiers crowd daily into motion picture shows depic-ture into one of the last books he Washingtonian, aware that in this hisexile, St. Paul wrote some of his episti Licinius, coemperor with Constantine, was put to death, and Theodosisus the Great established himself.

Estopped from talking of politics, particularly rife in Greece itself just now, Mr. Thomson has a wealth of anecdote ing "The Perils of New York" across of events concerning the landing of the street from churches, now Greek, which once were Turkish mosques, some of them centuries eld, containing relics of early religious worship which still furnish rich meterial for archeological study.

And all this strange, confused panorama breaks upon the eyes of the young in Greek Macedonia.

Dr. Shields Gives Last of Series Judge William J. Latimer Tells of Lectures Before About Ninety Men.

Dr. Mathew J. Shields, of the Washington in first aid practice for Latimer, of the Juvenile Court and the last ten days, delivered his last lecture at the District Building before about ninety men of the force.

Major Pullman had requested that Union at its meeting yesterday after-Dr. Shields give the captains and noon in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, lieutenants and a class of four picked Eleventh and H streets northwest. precinct this instruction so that the police force of the District may be prepared for emer-

the knowledge which they have gained from Dr. Shields.
Special emphasis was laid upon teaching the men how to differentiate a case of vertigo or concussion of the brain from drunkeness by the dilation of the pupils of the eyes, In-broken limbs, cuts, gunshot wounds and fainting spells.

Course a Continuation.

The course which has just been completed is a continuation of one which was given a year ago to certain members of the force.

Major Puliman has realized that the large majority of policemen are incapable of properly treating emergency cases, and, knowing the large crowds which would necessarily cause an unusual number of such cases, he began early to make the men under hith efficient in first aid methods.

To help the men further in their work during the inauguration week

city some ammonia capsules, a bottle

Big First Ald Box. Each patrol and emergency wagon will also be equipped with a large first-aid box. The wagon men are receiving special instruction in treating cases on the way to the hospital. This knowledge has already recei- d practical test. At a fire a few days ago one of the firemen who had been overcome by illuminating gas was placed in a patrol wagon in charge of Policemen McGregor, Davis, and Adcock. Before the man had reached the hospital he had been reveived and was able to walk from the wagon to the hospital for treatment.

of Purposes of New Association. The organization, scope and aim of American Red Cross Society, who has the Juvenile Protective Association been instructing the police force of was described by Judge William J.

> organization is recently formed and is just being perfected." said the judge. "It consists of a board of eighteen directors, representing whites, colored, Catholics, Protestants, Jews, and so on. We did not want it to be known as beling peculiar to any one class. Now we have it as we wanted it-truly representative of the entire community." Act as One Experienced, The aim of the organization, Judge Latimer declared, "is to act as one experienced and representative organsupported by all other organizations.

"When the organization is thus net fected," he declared, "we want it to go into the homes and act the part of the big sister in curing the delinquency and dependency of children as it comes to the attention of the Juve-"For example, when a boy is re Jeased from the National Training School we want some one who can keep a watchful eye on him to see to it that such harmful interest; as neglectful father or mother do not

Judge Latimer told the members of the union that it was to be hoped they would become members of the association or at least lend it their moral support. He said there would soon be plenty of work for volunteer workers, but asked them to refer no matters to the association until the salaried secretary to be employed is
